

With InfoNgen you can:

- Monitor masses of information – in minimal time
- Generate unique research ideas by tapping into more diverse sources of news and opinion
- Monitor the buzz about the companies, sectors and trends you follow on blogs and bulletin boards before it appears in mainstream media
- Share web discoveries with your team in real time

Created by the founders of Multex, InfoNgen enables research analysts to easily discover unique and relevant information from the wealth of content available on the web today. So you'll never again miss a story hidden in a blog or industry trade source – or an announcement buried in a local or foreign newspaper.

- Automatically monitor all key information sources – Get a single, comprehensive view of all the feeds and premium content you depend on every day.
- Receive breaking stories from hard-to-track websites – Even receive alerts when documents with content related to your coverage area arrive via email or are added to the firm's shared drives.
- Filter information around your interests or sectors – With the help of our content specialists, create custom taxonomies and personalize your settings to ensure you only receive information relevant to your strategies.
- Get color-coded real-time alerts – Save as many advanced searches as you want and organize your results by company or subject.

InfoNgen allows you to clip, annotate and save stories on the fly. As you see a notable story on InfoNgen – or anywhere on the web – you can add a comment and post it to a shared blog, email it or save it to your own research files.

InfoNgen is the first Discovery Engine for business, finance and information professionals that knows what's critical to you. Extracts relevant and timely information buried on the web, within emails, in desktop documents or on network drives. Identifies trends and connections between topics, companies or products that might not otherwise be apparent. And delivers results in real time.

Stop Searching. Start Discovering.™
